150th CENTENARY[®] UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

A Look Back: The First Commencement, 1875

Centenary University, originally Centenary Collegiate Institute, held its first commencement ceremony on June 25, 1875, in Hackettstown, New Jersey. The occasion featured a rich program of orations, essays, vocal and piano solos, and ensemble performances, showcasing the talents and intellect of the school's first graduating class. Student presentations touched on themes of faith, philosophy, humor, and personal reflection—setting a precedent for the academic and creative excellence that would continue for generations. This historic moment marked the beginning of a proud tradition that we honor today at our 150th Commencement.

HONORARY DOCTOR OF LAWS

New Jersey State Police Superintendent Col. Patrick J. Callahan

New Jersey State Police Superintendent Col. Patrick J. Callahan will deliver the address at the 150th commencement of Centenary University on Saturday, May 10th, University President Dale Caldwell, Ed.D., announced today. A member of the governor's cabinet, Col. Callahan is the 14th colonel of the state's leading law enforcement agency and was appointed to his current post in 2017. The University will present Col. Callahan with a Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, to recognize his many contributions to the state and its residents.

"Col. Callahan is one of New Jersey's most influential voices, with a message emphasizing that integrity, discipline, and hard work form the foundation for life success," said Dr. Caldwell. "That message is relevant for every member of the Class of 2025, no matter the career path they intend to follow. These are the qualities that define true leaders and make Centenary graduates unbeatable in the job market."

A familiar face at Centenary, Col. Callahan visits campus annually to address students in a course called Careers in Criminal Justice taught by Douglas Compton, Ed.D., Dean, School of Natural, Health, Social, and Behavioral Sciences and assistant professor of criminal justice. Dr. Compton invites a cadre of criminal justice professionals to discuss current issues in law enforcement and job opportunities in the field. Inspired by Col. Callahan's presentations, four recent Centenary alumni were among the 124 graduates of the 166th State Police Class last summer.

A native of Budd Lake, NJ, Col. Callahan served as the New Jersey State Police recovery bureau chief in the aftermath of Superstorm Sandy and worked with state and federal partners to develop and implement long-term recovery effort strategies. Col. Callahan also served as the commanding officer of the Emergency Management Section and assistant state director of the Office of Emergency Management. He was the chairman of the Command and Control Subcommittee of the Emergency Management Section when New Jersey hosted Super Bowl XLVIII, working to develop and implement all operations undertaken by the Public Safety Compound.

Before assuming his current role, Col. Callahan served as the department's deputy superintendent of operations, supervising and directing the operational activities of the 1,800 enlisted members assigned to Field Operations, as well as the operational duties and responsibilities of the Traffic and Public Safety Office, Victims Services Unit, Fatal Accident Investigation Unit, Highway Traffic Safety Unit, and Criminal Investigations Offices within Field Operations.

A resident of Warren County, Col. Callahan earned his Bachelor of Arts from Villanova University and a Master of Administrative Science from Fairleigh Dickinson University. He is the son of retired State Police Major Mick Callahan, who served as division staff section commanding officer under then-Superintendent Col. Clinton Pagano.

VALEDICTORIAN

Sophie Wayner '25
Bachelor of Science in Animal Health

Sophia Wayner is the valedictorian for the Centenary University Class of 2025. A resident of Califon, NJ, she has earned a Bachelor of Science in Animal Health with a flawless 4.0 GPA. At Centenary, Sophia is a member of the Honors Program and instructor in training with TRAC (Therapeutic Riding At Centenary), and is certified in two types of specialized equine massage—the Masterson Method and equine sports massage. She is also the owner of Lyrical, LLC, a business that combines both types of equine massage to treat her clients' horses. Sophia has been accepted to the inaugural class of the Schreiber School of Veterinary Medicine at Rowan University.

FIRST GENERATION VALEDICTORIAN

Nic Radovanic '25
Bachelor of Science in Biology: Forensic Science and a minor in Criminal Justice

Nicolas Radovanic is the first-generation valedictorian for the Centenary University Class of 2025. He has earned a Bachelor of Science in Biology: Forensic Science and a minor in criminal justice with a perfect 4.0 GPA. A resident of Long Valley, NJ,—where he's a volunteer EMT—Nicolas is a member of the Centenary Honors Program, Tri Alpha, Tri Beta, president of Health Occupations Students of America, and a First Year Leader. He also earned a grant from the Independent Colleges and Universities of New Jersey (ICUNJ) to conduct and present independent research on the effects of algae bloom in mussels. After gaining acceptance to seven medical schools, Nicolas will begin classes this summer at the Rowan-Virtua School of Osteopathic Medicine.

RED KNOT RECIPIENT

Ashley Carosella '25
Bachelor of Arts in Education

Ashley Carosella is the transfer student valedictorian for the Centenary University Class of 2025. She is a resident of Flemington, NJ, and has transferred from Raritan Valley Community College with an Associate of Arts for K-12 Education to Centenary University. She will be graduating with a Bachelor of Arts in K-8 education, a teacher of students with disabilities, and a middle school math endorsement, with an impressive 4.0 GPA. She has been nominated for the New Jersey Distinguished Clinical Intern Award in recognition of her outstanding performance during her student teaching experience at Delaware Township School. Next year, she will begin her teaching career as a 7th-grade math teacher at Hillsborough Middle School.

ALYSE HUNTER DISSERTATION AWARD RECIPIENT

Grant Mayes '25
Doctor of Education in Educational Leadership

Detective Dr. Grant Mayes serves with the Union County Prosecutor's Office (UCPO), currently assigned to the Special Victims Unit. Since joining UCPO in 2021, he has also served in the Special Prosecutions Unit, Cyber Crime Task Force, and Criminal Case Control Unit, and is an active member of the Honor Guard, Community Outreach Unit, and Shooting Response Team. Before UCPO, he was a Detective with the New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT) Police Department.

Dr. Mayes holds a B.A. in Sociology from Syracuse University, an M.S. in Public Safety from Capella University (with Honors), and a Post Master's Certification in Leadership and Accountability. His dissertation, "Diversity of New Jersey Law Enforcement and Its Impact on Community Trust," examines the critical role of diversity in building stronger relationships between law enforcement and the communities they serve, inspired by Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s quote: "We must learn to live together as brothers or perish together as fools."

Participation in Centenary University's Educational Leadership Doctorate Program strengthened Dr. Mayes' commitment to diversity, inclusivity, advocacy, and purpose-driven leadership.

THE ORIGIN OF THE ACADEMIC COSTUME

Wearing the academic gown is one of the oldest traditions still practiced. The origins of academic dress date back to the origins of universities themselves in the 12th and 13th centuries. At this time, the ordinary dress of the scholar, whether student or teacher, was the dress of a cleric. In 1222, Stephen Langton, one of England's greatest medieval archbishops, decreed that all clergy within his jurisdiction should wear cappa clausa, a closed, flowing gown then in lay fashion. Because Cambridge and Oxford were within Langton's province, the clerks at both universities complied with the decree. Over the years, English clergy turned to other styles of dress, but the clerks, compelled by stringent standards, held to the cappa clausa, and it eventually became exclusively academic.

The most colorful and distinctive element to academic garb is the hood. Another medieval relic, it descends from cowls worn by monks to ward off cold drafts in English monasteries and universities. The cowl, worn over a short cape or scarf (tippet) had a "tail" or liripipe. One pulled the hood over the head and then wrapped the tail around the neck to secure the hood. At some point, the tippet and hood merged into a single unit, while the liripipe evolved into a funnel-shaped ending of the hood.

The hoods are to be lined with the official color or colors of the college or university conferring the degree. The binding or edging of the hood is to be velvet or velveteen, two inches, three inches, and five inches wide for the bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees, respectively; the color should be indicative of the subject to which the degree pertains.

THE MACE

The mace in medieval times was a weapon, a heavy staff or club made wholly or partially from metal, and was used to break armor. From the 13th century, the king's bodyguards carried the mace as a symbol of secular authority. At colleges and universities around the country, the mace is carried by the marshal as a symbol of the power and authority of education.

Centenary University's mace was designed by the late Theodore Sizer, Professor of the History of Art and Pursuivant of Arms at Yale University. It was executed under his direction by Otto Hoepfner, an outstanding wood-carver. The shaft, collar and head of the mace are made of mahogany. The color includes a wreath painted in the University colors of black and blue against a background of gold leaf. The head of the mace represents the tower of the Edward W. Seay Administration Building. The dome on the mace is finished in gold leaf.

Alma Mater

*'Mid the silent hills surrounded,
Ripened by the flight of time,
And with honors still unbounded,
In her strong and lusty prime,
Alma Mater proudly raises
Halls and tower tall and strong,
And her children sing her praises,
Sing them loud and sing them long.*
